

Liam Duggan

Staff Instructor

Liam Duggan has been a Police Officer since 1997, serving first with the City of Burnsville and since 2011 with the City of St Paul in Minnesota, now assigned as a Patrol Sergeant. Working in assignments such as patrol, vice/narcotics, training and special operations, he is an accomplished instructor that is recognized as such by National Level Law Enforcement trainers. Liam's teaching and speaking credits range from local students entering Law Enforcement to national and international Special Operations and instructor audiences. He is a past president of SOTA (Special Operations Training Association) and now serves as their Director of Training and Development. He has numerous instructor certifications and an extensive training history that includes multiple combatives disciplines, pistol/sub-gun/M4 and long range rifle and spec ops related tactics. He also focuses heavily in the area of Instructor Development and human performance. In addition to his special operations background Liam has also presented nationally for organizations such as IALEFI and ILEETA in areas from firearms tactics to leadership development. He serves as an expert witness consultant in Force Response Incidents and is a certified Force Science Analyst. Liam is a national Staff Instructor for LouKa Tactical, PoliceCombat and Soulis Shooting Systems.

Liam has shared his philosophy with law enforcement trainers from all over the world. His craftsmanship of blending life's challenges with career challenges is centered in performance in every aspect of a person's life. Rooted in a faith and belief in things bigger than himself, Liam's name is becoming synonymous with passion and enthusiasm with training and trainers and lives within the philosophy of leaving the law enforcement culture better than he found it through 360 degree leadership.
