

Matthew Chuey

Staff Instructor

Matthew Chuey has been a police officer in Arizona since 2012. He started his career with a medium sized agency in the Phoenix metropolitan area where he worked as a patrol officer, gang liaison officer, narcotics liaison officer, and on the department's tactical team. Matthew now works for a larger agency in the Phoenix metropolitan area where he is assigned to the department's full time

SWAT team. Matthew is a firearms instructor for handgun, rifle, and shotgun for both the department and on the SWAT team. Matthew was involved in the testing and development of his departments RDS handgun policy and consulted with his agency's head firearms staff during the development of that program. Matthew has worked with individual officers, entire patrol squads, specialty units, academy recruits, basic and advanced rifle operators, and his own SWAT team to develop and present meaningful training to enhance their abilities when using firearms.

In his off time, Matthew is an avid competition shooter and competes in multiple shooting disciplines such as USPSA, UML, IDPA, and 3-Gun Nation. Matthew has been able to travel to numerous states not only to compete, but to also train with various law enforcement agencies and training organizations. Matthew is also a founding member of his department's shooting team.
